pected that the following targets would be achieved by 31-3-1991:

| | |
|---|---|
| Urban Water Supply | 90% |
| Rural Water Supply | 85% |
| Urban Sanitation | 50% |
| Rural Sanitation | 50% |

The Conference of Ministers incharge of Urban Water Supply and Sanitation in the State Governments and Union Territories held on 7th Feb., 1986 endorsed the above targets subject to a review at a later stage. However, as per a subsequent review made by the Department of Rural Development, it has been assessed that the target for supply of safe drinking water to 2.57 lakh problem villages and to provide sanitation facilities to 25 per cent of the rural population are likely to be achieved by the end of the Seventh Plan.

(b) The Mid-Decade Review Conference revealed that it would not be possible to achieve the orginally envisaged targets of 100 per cent for both urban and rural water supply, 80 per cent urban sanitation and 25 per cent rural sanitation due to financial and other constraints.

(c) The Major constraints are mainly inadequate financial resources, shortage of skilled man-power and materials, institutional and organisational problems, problem of land acquisition. The concerned State Governments and UTs which are responsible for provision of adequate water supply and sanitation have proposed to take the following measures:—

(i) Mobilisation of adequate financial resoures;

(ii) training and development of skilled man-power. Assigning of higher priority in procurement of materials;

(iii) institutional re-organisation; and

(iv) streamlining procedure of land acquisition and other problems.

The Government of India is providing assistance to the State and UTs for development of skilled man-power management information system, use of microcomputers and technical advice through CPHEEO.
